NEW CARLTON TO BE READY NEXT WINTER, OWNERS TOLD

Directors Predict Opening Before Contract Date

SHRINE TO JAZZ

From Description, New Establishment Will Be Marvel

The first detailed description of the new Carlton restaurant and dancing establishment, now being erected on Bubbling Well Road opposite the race course, is contained in the report made to the directors yesterday at a general meeting at the head office of the company, 10 Canton road.

From this description it will be seen that Shanghai is to have an entertainment palace equal to those in the big cities of the Western world. The building, for which the foundations are already completed, will be ready for carrying the summer is over, as predicted by some the structure will be ready for occupancy several months, before the time in the contract, May

The Chairman's report on the new Carlton follows:

"When the Carlton is completed we shall have the best and most up-to-date restaurant and ball room in the Far East. It will no doubt be of interest, if I give you a short description of the proposed building.

"On the ground level along the South or Bubbling Well Road frontage there will be seven shops, with up to date display windows, forming a colonade. This will enable departing guests to walk along under cover from the entrance, which will be at the corner next to Arts and Crafts, right up to Sang Sonet terrace, thus obviating any crowding at the entrance itself and allowing them to enter their conveyances at any point along the whole frontage.

CAFE AND THEATER

"Separating the entrance from the adjoining building there will be a road way running the full length of the building, passing under a bridge, which will connect the Cafe lobby with the theater, and emerging into Park Road, thus furthering eliminating congestion.

"Inside the main doors there will be a small lobby from which one passes up ten steps to the entrance hall proper where the cloak rooms will be situated. Continuing up the main staircase one arrives at the Lounge, approximately 60 x 30 feet, which will be sumptuously furnished and from which radiate three entrances, one leading to the theater and the others to the dining room and the ball room respectively. The ball room floor being somewhat lower than that of the lounge, one must go down 10 steps to reach it. This room is oval in shape and will surpass anything of its kind in the Far East. The seating accommodation, which will be arranged on raised platforms surrounding the dancing area, and in a balcony circling the room, will be sufficient to accommodate 3,000 people, 2,000 of whom will be able to dance at the same time. The height of the room from floor to ceiling is 32 feet.

THE DINING ROOM

"The dining room, which will be a magnificent room 98 by 52 feet capable of being subdivided by heavy draperies so that part of it will be available for private parties without interfering with the other guests. It faces Bubbling Well Road and communicates through large French windows with a wide veranda, running the whole length of the building. To the West of the dining room there will be a smoking room, with its own buffet and entrance, which will be reserved exclusively for the use of gentlemen.

"Above the dining room there will be a roof garden with a special dancing floor which should be a great attraction during the summer months.

"To the North East on the Park Road frontage, behind Messrs. Arts & Crafts building, a theater will be erected. This theater, which will accommodate 1,000 people, has been leased to China Theaters, Limited a Tientsin Company, and as there will be direct access from the theater to the Carlton should prove an additional attraction to our undertaking; for the benefit of those not wishing to enter the theater through the Carlton, there will be another entrance from Park Road."

MAGISTRATE KWAN ON LEAVE; YUI TO HEAD MIXED COURT

Acting Chief Has Splendid Record As Judicial Officer Here

Owing to ill-health, Magistrate Kwan Chun, senior magistrate of the Mixed Court, will be absent on a two-month leave of absence beginning on July 1. During his absence, Magistrate Yui Ying-vang will act as senior magistrate of the court.

Magistrate Yui received his education at the Government Law School of Kiangsu and graduated from that institution with high distinction. He officiated as the Chief Judge of the Civil Court of Nantao in the first year of the Republic. In the third year, his office was abolished and in August of the same year, he was appointed magistrate of the Mixed Court.

Magistrate Yui hails from Shaohsing, Chekiang, and is 46 years old. He has been decorated by many foreign governments as well as the Republic. His latest decorations include the Second Class Chiaho with the Grand Sash and Precious Rays and the first class gold medal of merit of the Ministry of Justice.

The acting magistrate is one of the best educated judges on the Chinese bench and his experience in the Mixed Court places him in a position best fitted for the improvement of the judicial system in the country. Close followers of the acting senior magistrate are of the opinion that if China possess sufficient judicial men like Mr. Yui, any difficulty in improving the system will be greatly reduced if not entirely eliminated.

RATHENAU CASE SUSPECT ADMITS PART IN MURDER

Techow Tells Police He Drove Car Used By Slayers

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, June 30.—Ernest Techow has admitted that he was aware of the plot to assassinate Dr. Rathenau and that he drove the car from which the shots were fired.

Berlin, June 30.—President Ebert has issued a decree stating that members of secret societies planning to murder prominent persons are liable to the death penalty or to penal servitude for life and that anybody knowing the existence of such societies is liable to penal servitude if he does not inform the authorities or does not warn anyone whose life is threatened by such a society.

TSAO ASKED TO SETTLE CABINET CRISIS BY LI

President Disapproves Demand Of Kiangsu Tuchun To Recall Governor

(Special Wire to China Press)

Peking, June 30.—President Li Yuan-hung has sent an emissary to Paotingfu to urge General Tsao Kun to come to Peking immediately to settle the Cabinet crisis and to ask General Wu Pei-fu to refrain from returning to Loyang. In reply General Tsao has wired to the Chief Executive, declaring that it was not his intention to interfere in politics and any one who does so in Peking is not authorised by him.

Tuchun Chi Shih-yuan's request to rescind the Presidential Mandate appointing Mr. Han Kuochun as Civil Governor of Kiangsu has been definitely turned down by President Li. The president expresses regret at the attitude of the Kiangsu Tuchun, saying that it looked to him as if Tuchun Chi, instead of abolishing his own position as suggested by the public, is trying to abolish the Civil Governorship in his province.

Minister of Finance Tung Kang has tendered his resignation on account of the demand by Tsao Kun for $500,000 for military expenses. Mr. Wang Kuo-ming has been mentioned as the probable successor.

Dr. C. T. Wang is advocating an amicable settlement with Dr. Sun Yat-sen in order to bring back Kwantung and other Southwestern provinces to the fold. Consequently, the secretariat of the President has been instructed by Li Yuan-hung to draft a telegram to invite Dr. Sun to come up.

(Dah Tong News Bureau)

Peking, June 30.—President Li has sent Admiral Tu Shih-kwei to Paoting to ask General Tsao Kun to come up to Peking and to request General Wu Pei-fu to remain in the Chihli capital. Tsao replied that if he was required to leave Paoting, he would do so, but it was not necessary for him to go to Peking as he had no desire of meddling in politics.

The split between Tsao and Wu was caused by Tsao's proposal to place his own men in the Ministry of Finance and the Civil Governor's office in Chihli while Wu has strongly urged Dr. W. W. Yen to maintain the status quo of the cabinet.

In dealing with the Southern situation, the views of Presidential Office and Paoting are different. Li considers both Dr. Sun and General Chen Chiung-ming as rivals in the coming negotiations for peace, while Paoting maintains that Dr. Sun is out of the game and Chen should be regarded as the competent authority to represent the South.

Thomson Committed For Trial In British Supreme Court On Fraud Charge

Mariner Is Held On Count Of Uttering Fraudulent License But Forgery Accusations Are Not Sustained

Despite a lengthy statement which he made in his own behalf, John Thomson was committed for trial at the next criminal sessions of the British Supreme Court on a charge of uttering a document purporting to be a master's license for a steamship of 7,000 tons issued by the U. S. Department of Commerce at the conclusion of a preliminary hearing before Magistrate G. W. King in the British Police Court yesterday afternoon. The Magistrate held that there was insufficient evidence to commit the accused on a second charge of forgery.

Thomson, in making his statement to the Court, said that he was in Seattle in 1914 and it was there that he obtained his first American citizenship papers. He was then in the employ of the Standard Oil Company. At the end of December, 1919, he travelled to the United States, landing in San Francisco on January 22, 1920. After remaining there for a few days, he went to the Union Iron Works to see friends, but failed to see them. Later, he saw Captain Blain coming out of the Iron Works. The latter asked him if he would join the American Merchant Marine. Captain Blain, he understood, was a director of the Shipping Board.

SHORTAGE OF MEN

Captain Blain told him that there was a shortage of men in the American Merchant Marine and that they were ready to take "men with wooden legs and glass eyes." They went to the hotel, and after dinner Captain Blain came with Captain John Leale. Accused told Blain he was not an American citizen, and the latter declared it was very easy to become one. They were making citizens all the time. A few days later, accused had a long talk with Leale in the offices of the Shipping Board, and Leale took him to see a judge. The judge told Leale: "It has become too hot and too salt," or words to that effect. Leale then inquired of the Judge, "Who trod on your toes this morning?"

Before he left for Washington he wished Captain Leale goodbye. The latter gave him a card to a Captain Hibbert. At Washington, he called at the Shipping Board offices and saw Captain Hibbert, who was a high official of the Shipping Board. Accused showed him the letter of introduction. He was sent to the naturalization bureau with a shipping board clerk. He saw a Mr. Wilson. The clerk explained to Mr. Wilson that he wanted naturalization papers as they were required by the Shipping Board. Mr. Wilson asked whether accused knew any person in Washington. He told the accused to go to the Naval Office and sign on.

REFUSED TO SIGN

Continuing, accused said: "I would not do it, and said so. I said also that I did not know anyone in Washington. I then went and saw Captain Hibbert. He said he had done all he could and could do no more. I called on Captain Kincaid and saw him before leaving for New York. I received a letter from Captain Hibbert to a friend named Captain Kennedy in care of the City Hall in New York. From Mr. Kennedy I received my citizenship papers. He said that they were doing that now as they wanted men and everything was o. k.

"Two days afterward, I was taken to the Shipping Board offices and the outcome of it was that I was taken to the Customs House. Mr. Kennedy told me that the Shipping Board wanted me to take a ship from Philadelphia to the Clyde and to stay with the Shipping Board. Later on, I received this envelope and license and a book of regulations, which I refused. Some time afterwards, I left New York and went to Southampton on an American liner as a passenger. Then I went to Scotland. I came out in 1921 to Hongkong, where I was offered three positions which I refused because the wages were insufficient."

In 1914 you renounced your right to be a British subject?—Yes.

Two days after you received naturalisation papers you went to the British Consulate in New York and got this passport visaed?—I explained to them in New York the circumstances.

Did you tell them that you were an American citizen?—I showed them the papers and explained that passports were held up.

You never used this American license?—Never.

CHARGES FORGERY

I seriously put it to you that that application for membership written to the China Officers' Guild is in your own handwriting?—Part of it is. I never put my birthplace as New York. I was born in Glasgow. New York in that application was never filled in by me.

Magistrate: You have told us that you went to the United States. Certain people in the United States were anxious that

DETECTIVE IS FINED $50 ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Chinese Is Held Guilty Of Attack On Fishmongers

Dzung Nyok-san, a Chinese detective attached to the West Honkew Station, was fined $50 and Saung Hee, a hawker, was sentenced to a four months' jail term after Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Kwan had found them guilty of assault on a number of Chinese fishmongers, at the conclusion of an adjourned hearing in the Mixed Court yesterday afternoon.

The trouble leading to the charges against the detective and Saung, who is alleged to have been friendly with him, originated some days ago in the Elgin Road Market, when Dzung's wife, claiming that she was insulted by one of the fishmongers, complained to him. He, in company with Saung, is alleged to have gone to the market and wielded a heavy boot on several of the fishmongers. A general disturbance followed in which several of the fish-stalls were upset and their contents flapped about in a wholly ungraceful manner in the faces of the several combatants.

In sentencing the two, the Court declared that it had been convinced that the assault was committed by the accused, although they tried to established an alibi.

Dr. O. Fischer prosecuted the men on behalf of the fishmongers, and Mr. J. Em. Lemiere appeared for the defense.

Sun Willing To Quit "If People Of Canton So Desire"

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 30.—According to Chinese telegrams from Canton, replying to a request that he should retire, Dr. Sun Yat-sen says he is willing if the people of Canton so desire, but that his followers would certainly resent such a move.

The telegrams add that General Hsu Chung-chih has been ordered to return to Canton and there is speculation regarding his future attitude. Of the three routes by which General Hsu's troops could reach Canton, two are guarded by General Chen Chiung-ming's forces, while the third passes Wafangow, where opposition would probably be offered. Thus, active military measures to restore Dr. Sun are not likely.

'Do It Electrically'--- The U. S. S. Broome Does

By Irene Corbally

If a conscientious journalist could first visit all the destroyers in port here and then write about them, the task would be rendered less hazardous. As it is, doing a ship a day, honest enthusiasm for the "feature" of each ship, aided and abetted by the enthusiasm of the men themselves, is apt to lead said c.j. into extravagances, and dangers of temporary mission. It may lead also to the statement that such and such a ship has the only this or that. Then later, comes the discovery that some other ship in the squadron has several features instead of one and the previous statement on the "only" stuff has to be changed to include the latest discovery.

There is the U.S.S Broome, of the 37th division, for instance. The Broome must go on record at once as having aboard an electrician who is always tinkering and "McGimpling" around. The result is that the Broome is one place in town where a cigarette may be lighted on the first try. There are no swear-provoking matches aboard whose alleged sulphur tops, softened by the humidity and the campness, crumble to a pulpy messiness instead of springing into a vibrant flame when struck on a box. Instead there is in the wardroom—and doubtless, elsewhere, in the crew's quarters aboard ship—a snappy little cigarette lighter rigged up by the ingenious electrician. An induction or "choke" coil is attached somewhere to the regular center light in the room. A wire runs from this to a foot above the table. At the end of the wire are two little plugs, with a space between them. When they are pressed together, the steel tip of each forms a point of contact and a resultant small steady blue flame. If a few of these contraptions could be rigged up on shore, the wideawake electrician could make a fortune and several matchmakers from neighboring islands would have to go out of business.

A JAZZ AUTHOR

The Whipple is not the only ship that has had a book written about it. A really excellent book, descriptive of the cruise of the Broome, enlivened by regular seaman's wit, than which there is, at times, no than whicher, and with brief but valuable information on the ship itself and the personnel, has been compiled by one of the Broomites. The author, incidentally, is the jazz pianist of the squadron orchestra. Chief Quartermaster Pherson is the literary light and the loose-leaf book which he has put together, with the help of all the wits of the crew, is a worthy contribution to light travel literature.

Pherson during the war was pianist in the navy orchestra that played at various entertainments at the rest camps and near the front, for the men on leave for a short time.

Returning to the electrical devices for which the Broome is justly famous, there is the phonograph with a motor. This is just one of the many step-savers which give the crowd aboard this little ship more time to improve their minds and their snappy conversation, besides polishing the brasswork to a degree of brilliance never before attained anywhere. There is no wrist-tiring exercise in connection with the sweet music that plays all day aboard the Broome. You just press a button and the show is on.

The Broome, too, possesses the only telephone in the squadron. It hangs in the wardroom and conversation between the officers and the gangway is possible through this little time and step-saving instrument.

After having been shown around through the electric wonders aboard, it came as a distinct shock when a boy cleared away the dishes that were on the table. It would not have been surprising if they had grouped themselves together in response to gentle

U. S. SHIPS TO STAGE DISPLAY FOR "FOURTH"

Warcraft Will Be Brilliantly Illuminated For Night Celebration

A mammoth electrical display, the most splendid ever seen in Shanghai's harbor, is being prepared by American war vessels in port here for the night of July Fourth in celebration of America's Independence Day. Throughout the evening, electric lights will blazon forth the outlines of the score of American warcraft on the Whangpoo, and the searchlights of each of the ships will be reflected in the sky.

This newest feature of Shanghai's observance of the Fourth was announced yesterday at the meeting of the general committee in charge of arrangements for the celeoration at the home of U. S. Consul-General E. S. Cunninghan. The approval of the American naval authorities has already been obtained, and the work of preparing the displays is already in progress.

Complete plans for the observance of the Fourth, as prepared by the various subcommittees, were approved by the full committee at the meeting yesterday. The plans include the flag-raising at the Consulate in the morning, when the American Consul-General will read the Declaration of Independence, the official reception at the home of the Consul-General from 11:30 to 12:30; open house at the American Club from 12:30 to 2:30; a reception aboard the 2:30 a reception aboard the U. S. S. Huron from 4 until 6 o'clock. Community Lawn Party, and the tennis matches, tableaux, flag drill and picnic supper at the Race Course from 5 until 7 o'clock followed by motion pictures.

FRENCH SEE PRETENCE IN GERMANY'S POVERTY PLEA

Poincare Tells Of Money Spent On Ships

DEMANDS ACTION

Suggests Allies Act Collectively Or Separately

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 30.—In the Senate last night M. Poincare, dealing with reparations, declared that Germany's apparent poverty was simply pretence. Germany was spending on her commercial fleet twelve milliards that ought to go to the Allies.

Germany was buying back vessels surrendered to Britain and was building many new vessels. The German Mercantile Marine was now the third commercial fleet in the world.

Germany was carrying out considerable works for the improvement and extension of her railways. The Allies must insist on the application of real export taxes. The money the Germans had accumulated abroad must be made available for reparations.

Severe control of Germany's finances must be established and, if she refused to accept such control the Allies would be able to take measures collectively or separately.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 30.—It is reported from Kiukiang that the recent request for the removal of General Tsai Cheng-hsun's troops outside of Kiukiang arose from a demand that the Chamber of Commerce should provide $40,000 and the fear of a clash with the 12th Division, which is returning from the front in disorder.

CONTROVERSY IN HOUSE OF LORDS OVER TITLE GRANT

Sir Joseph Robinson Wanted To Decline Honor

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 30.—Following an agitation in Parliament in connection with the conferment of honors, principally arising out of the Birthday peerage to the South African, Sir Joseph Robinson, which General Smuts, replying to attacks in the South African Parliament recently, said that he had never recommended it, consternation was caused by the Lord Chancellor today reading a letter in the House of Lords which Sir Joseph Robinson wrote to Mr. Lloyd George on June 23 asking the King's permission to decline the peerage.

Sir Joseph, referring to the debate on his peerage in the House of Lords, said that he had never sought the honor, that he was an old man to whom honors and dignities could no longer be matters of much concern and that he would be sorry if the honor were the occasion of such ill-feeling as had been manifested in the House of Lords.

Lord Birkenhead's announcement was made on the resumption of the debate in the House of Lords on the question of whether Sir Joseph Robinson had been recommended for a peerage for national or Imperial services. Lord Birkenhead said that the matter was very difficult and very delicate.

There was undoubtedly a grave omission, which he hoped would not be repeated, in the circumstances in which the recommendation had been made. The Secretary for the Colonies was not consulted on the matter as he should have been in order to enable him to exercise his constitutional duty to make himself the mouthpiece of the Dominions to acquaint the Premier with the opinion and desire of the Dominions and generally to advise him.

It was realised and admitted that no British citizen, resident in and primarily belonging to a Dominion, ought to be recommended for an honor in this country except with the approval of his Government.

That principle would undoubtedly guide action in the future.

Note: Sir Joseph Robinson who is over 80 years of age, was well-known (he was then Mr. J. B. Robinson) in the early days of the Kimberley Diamond fields where he made his first fortune. He went to the Rand when gold was discovered there and ultimately secured control of what became known as the Robinson group of mines.

It is many years ago, however, since he lived on the Rand. He is understood to be a multi-millionaire (sterling) and one of the wealthiest, if not actually the wealthiest, of the world's gold-mining magnates.

Peculiarities Of Depths Of Atlantic

If you could go down to the bottom of the Atlantic and look about you the scene would be one of rolling plains, deep steep valleys and mountain chains. You would find the water without motion, and the cold would be of an extremely low degree. There would be no light except, perhaps, a very feeble light on the mountain tops. At the bottom, where the water is of average Atlantic depth, the pressure, or the weight of water, would crush any ship or building ever put together by man. In the "deeps" of the Atlantic or those vast sinks or holes, the pressure, if expressed in tons per square inch, would be as much beyond the grasp of one's imagination as are those stellar distances of thousands of light years which astronomers tell of.

The largest and deepest of the "deeps" so far as known is that called Nares Deep, northeast of the Bahama Islands, where the United States ship, Blake, in 1883, brought up bottom from a depth of 27,366 feet, or roughly, five and one-fifth miles. There are many of these "deeps," or holes; some a hundred square miles in extent and some thousands of miles in extent. It is not believed that all have been discovered.

In the depths of the Atlantic from about a line drawn from Labrador to Scotland, running 2,800 miles south of the equator, or as far down South America as central Patagonia, is a range of mountains called the North Atlantic and the South Atlantic ridge. The top of this ridge, on an average, is covered by approximately two miles of water. At the north end of this ridge are two chains of volcanic mountains, one extending northwest to Iceland and the other northeast to the Faroe Islands and beyond. The average depth over those mountain tops is only a little more than a quarter of a mile.

Between Newfoundland and the British Isles this subsea ridge is so wide and flat that it is called a plateau, and its name is Telegraph Plateau, no doubt from the fact that cables have been laid across it. On the American and European sides of this plateau, between it and the coasts are long valleys, one hundred to three hundred miles wide and averaging three and a half miles in depth below the surface of the water, and a mile and a half below the top of the plateau. Some of the subsea mountains stick their tops out of the water and we have such islands as Madeira, Cape Verde, Azores, Cuba, Jamaica, Porto Rico and all the other West Indies.

Over nearly all the bottom of the sea, or the tops and slopes of the mountains, and the valleys and the plains beneath the Atlantic is an ooze or sludge of unknown thickness, gray in color and clayey in texture, formed by microscopic animals casting off their shells. These little animals of many species all have hard scientific names. There are countless trillions and quadrillions of them in a cubic mile of water and they have been living, shedding their shells and dying since before the Mezozoic Age or the "Middle Age," when mammals, fish and birds made their appearance on the earth. That may have been a million or a trillion years ago.

These mites secrete lime which they obtain from the water, form it into a shell and shed it and make another shell. It was these little fellows who made all the limestone in the world. They laid down deep beds of this same gray ooze in the bottom of the oceans. The waters receded, land appeared and that gray ooze hardened into limestone.

"Vague Outlook" Hits Rubber Prices

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 30.—The check to the rise in rubber shares and the fall in the price of rubber to 8⅝ pence yesterday was due to disappointment of the vagueness of the outlook.

The Dutch Minister of the Colonies has been asked to appoint a Commission to inquire into the best means of carrying out eventual Dutch Government assistance. It it feared that the inquiry may be long and delay action permanently to improve the price of rubber.

TREATIES TO WAIT

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 30.—It does not appear likely that the Chamber of Deputies can ratify the Washington agreements before the vacation. The Foreign Affairs Commission have appointed Reporters to study the various questions, such as limitation of armaments, protection of neutral shipping, the French policy in China and also with regard to the Pacific. The Chamber will probably have risen before they report and, if so, the matter cannot come up before October or November.

pressure on a bell connecting with an imaginary electric assembler, preparatory to disappearing on an electric take-'em-away. It was also a surprise to have to climb the stairs of the companionway. This error will be rectified soon, no doubt, by the installation of some kind of a miniature lift or elevator.

DECEPTIVE FLOWERS

Even the flowers used for decorative purposes in the wardroom of the Broome are the kind that lend themselves to decoration without insisting on someone's having to go to the trouble of watering them. They are life-size plants and until one steps up and examines them closely they appear to have been plucked fresh in the morning. However, despite the fact that they repose in clay pots, filled with soil, they are silk. The breeze that blows in through the portholes, directly over them, keeps them dusted, saving even that bit.

As for birds! There is a cage everywhere you look. They all act as sure-rising alarm clocks. The one in the wardroom is the master clock. He sounds reveille early in the morning and the birds in the other department take up the good work until further sleep is quite impossible.

The birds are not the only singers on the Broome. There is Cambridge Woods, a North Carolina negro, with a 20-year service record in the Navy. Cambridge is one of the best cooks in the navy, and he runs true to Southern form in that he can sing jazz and pathetic ballads, including "Over the Hill to the Poor-house," with equal facility, besides shaking a couple of mean shufflin' shoes.

"There ain't a young fella here what can beat me," says Cambridge and I believe him.

The crowd on the Broome have gone on record in the concluding line of their book by saying that "it goes to show that the old 'Broome' is the best, was the best and always will be the best destroyer that ever floated." The present crowd hang together with a loyalty that is splendid. If a visitor speaks of a smart chap on another ship, there is his superior on the Broome, according to the boys.

THE GALLOPIN' BO'SUN

Borgstadt, the self-styled "gallopin' bo'sun of the gallopin' Broome," Sam Burger, chief machinist's mate and "Doc" Kemp, pharmacist, otherwise known as "La Belle Marie," for his Julian Eltinge impersonations of feminine characters in several shows which the Broome put on in Cherbourg and elsewhere, all united with one voice in praise of one of their fellows, unfortunately absent on shore leave while the Broome was being interviewed yesterday.

The absentee "Doggie" Bishop, chief commisary steward, according to his loyal friends and supporters among the officers and the crew has the fastest fast line that was ever unwound in any conversational encounter everywhere.

His broadsides of wit hit the bull's-eye with such smashing vigor that the eye is completely wiped out. In the crew's mess, some bright soul evolved the idea of cutting a notch in the table edge for every bright one that "Doggie" released. One entire side of the eight-foot table has been decorated with close cut notches, so that it resembles the blade of a new saw, and the markers are now starting up the other side. If "Doggie" stays on the Broome much longer, part of the recreation fund will have to be appropriated for a new mess table while the old one is retired to some Museum of Humor on full pay.

BRITISH SCIENTIST PREDICTS FAMINE

Will next year be a year of widespread famine? Sir William Beveridge makes a remarkable prediction of severe crop failure in 1923, and British scientists are now pondering over his prophesy.

Computations that Sir William has made indicate that there are four different weather cycles that affect crops. All of these combine in a maximum unfavorable phase indicating heavy and harmful deluges during the period from February to September, 1923, the growing season of next year.

The prediction is based on the variation in wheat prices in Europe during the last three hundred years. Sir William, using the periodgram method of computation, finds that the maximum price from 1,500 to 1,869 came at intervals of about fifteen and one-third years. This abnormality, his statistical analysis shows, is due to four weather cycles, temporarily operating all together. One of 4.37 years corresponds to one that has been identified in sun-spots. Another of 5.11 years has been found in temperature and rainfall records. Two others, that are less definite, those of 2.74 and 3.71, seem to have been identified in meteorological or astronomical data.

"The year 1923 is destined to repeat something like the experience of 1315, the year of the worst and most general harvest failure known in European history," says Sir William Beveridge, "in the excessively improbable event of my arithmetical analysis being complete and accurate in every particular."

The leading scientific weekly magazine of England, "Nature," believes the prediction well founded. "In the face of it, the evidence seems sound, and the reasoning careful and critical," this magazine says, editorially. "To the crowd, if not to the man of science, the fulfillment of a prophecy always seems to give more adequate support to a theory than any number of agreements with past events, and the year 1923 may be awaited with an interest mingled with anxiety."

Officials of the United States weather bureau declare that they have not yet made investigations into Sir William Beveridge's predictions for a widespread famine next year. Prof. H. L. Moore of Columbia university of New York recently made a statistical analysis by the periodgram method of prices from 1882 to 1918 and found a marked maximum at eight years in the cycle of a number of crops and corresponding cycles in the production of the raw materials of industry.

Tax Exemption On Food Is Extended

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, June 27.—The Ministry of Finance has sent a telegram to Generals Tsao and Wu Pei-fu announcing the fact that a further exemption of three months has been granted on the payment of taxes covering food stuffs transported into the famine areas. This exemption was originally extended to the end of May but has again been given three months more by the approval of the Cabinet.

This extension was granted through the appeal of the International Famine Relief Bureau which had already purchased grain for transportation into these districts where the people could not live through the poor spring harvest without outside help.

FOR REMOVING SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.

No woman who has any sense of beauty will deny that superfluous hair is one of the greatest drawbacks to good looks.

Realising this, women of all times have put themselves to any expense, and have endured considerable pain and discomfort in order to rid themselves of this great disfigurement.

Nowadays electrolysis is a prevalent "cure" for this evil, but in reality this process involves a great deal of unnecessary expense, waste of time and pain.

The simplest quickest, and most effective treatment can easily be carried out by any sufferer, in the privacy of her home. This is the recipe:

Procure about 1 oz. powdered pheminol from your chemist; mix a sufficient quantity with a few drops of water into a stiff paste. Apply this carefully and thoroughly to the hair you wish to remove, and allow the paste to dry. In a few minutes it can be gently scraped away. The skin is left absolutely free from hair, and should then be carefully washed in warm water, and if desired, lightly dusted with a little talcum powder. (Advt.)

THRIFT TESTIMONIALS OF NOTABLE MEN

Rudyard Kipling—

"Savings represent much more than their mere money value. They are proof that the saver is worth something in himself. Any fool can waste, any fool can muddle; but it takes something of a man to save, and the more he saves the more of a man does it make of him. Waste and extravagance unsettle a man's mind for every crisis; thrift, which means some form of self-restraint and continence, steadies it."

If you had a building worth a hundred thousand dollars, and if it were bringing you an income of six thousand dollars a year net, how much fire insurance would you carry on it? You wouldn't be satisfied with ten thousand dollars, would you? You would take a hundred thousand dollars if you could get it but you probably couldn't get over eighty thousand dollars. Then don't be satisfied with ten thousand dollars life insurance, for the situations are exactly alike."

GENOAPREVENTED WAR, SAYSGARVIN

Truce Must Be Prolonged Or World Struggle Will Prove Lloyd George Right

FRANCE MOST TO LOSE

Other English Commentators See Little Definite Gain At Genoa

London, May 20.—While considerable divergence opinion is shown concerning the achievements of the Genoa conference, even by newspapers known as the Premier's supporters, J. L. Garvin, in The Observer, is loud in his praise. To sum up his impressions of the conference, he declares is "like being asked to give a compendious account of the Day of Judgment." He continues.

"There was the British Empire delegation on one side and there was San Marino on the other. It reminded one of that delectable negro ballad which describes how the ant and the elephant walked side by side into the ark. There were in all thirty nations representing the whole political side of the Atlantic. Even America, though not a formal participant, was a priviliged and vigilant witness, making us all aware of her presence. We were conscious of being overlooked."

Then Garvin turns to the compact of nonaggression and says:

"Had not Lloyd George won that preliminary truce of God, giving time for a supreme effort to turn it into a more permanent instrument, I am certain that a Russian eruption on the Polish or Rumanian frontier would have been the beginning of convulsions shattering Europe from end to end. Either this truce by prolongation will be in itself a saving event or the sequel will be a supreme though sombre vindication of the man who made at Genoa a heroic fight."

Garvin dwells on the Senegalese troops in the French Army and the Chinese Guards in Lenin's pay, and says:

"The logic of the French reaction and of the Northcliffe press would be a sort of supermanageddon in which hordes of black and yellow were launched against each until the larger forces of the East slowly conquered and the dwindling life of France was trodden out forever. No power in the world so much needs genuine peace, a system of reconciliation and disarmament as France whose population declines with every victory no less than with every defeat. The best hopes of the original Genoa program are held up by the rigid French veto during the conference upon European reunion, trade recovery and the more fundamental assurance of peace by the rational revision of some of the more glaring territorial abuses perpetrated in the east of Europe under the Versailles treaty.

"Either the Genoa policy will live and grow and triumph on the base of a settled peace for Europe and Asia alike or the civilisation of modern Europe will perish like that of ancient Rome. Russia would have the least to risk. Germany might be the cockpit of the continent, a devastated battleground as in the thirty years war, but France, though her initial ascendency in military equipment would enable her to advance at the beginning of such a struggle, would be its surest victim at the end. But Poincare and the present reactionary Chamber will not last forever. There are already signs that a revival of French liberalism will compel a saner course: the very life of France depends on it, no less than the fate of Europe."

Crawford Price, writing in the Sunday Times takes a different view. He says:

"While I believe Genoa to have been a step in the right direction, I am by no means convinced that it was well timed and I am persuaded that no useful purpose can be served by regarding the results of its labors through rose colored spectacles."

It was heralded as about to produce a new dispensation, it has ended in "a miserable patched-up settlement which the French persist in regarding as a formula to save the face of a defeated purpose and from which we choose to derive some encouragement to continue the quest after peace and good-will among nations."

This settlement, Price thus sums up:

Financial and economic resolutions of present academic interest and possible future utility have been drawn up, but they as best must remain the pious dreams of their sponsors until the facilities of a political order necessary for their exploitation have been established. For the rest the hatreds, and resentments of war have not been eliminated. Europe remains divided into two camps. The rights of equality for all nations have been consistently denied. In place of any common striving after the ideal there have been humiliating wrangles and the binding of sordid self-interest and national ambition.

"Finally, for all practical purposes, the Russian problem stands where it did when Facta first welcomed the thirty-four nations to Italy. As to the covered pact of non-aggression, it has been watered down to an eight months' truce to which neither France, Belgium nor Germany is yet a party, and which depends for its brief existence upon the good faith of a Government which has yet to indicate that it understands the meaning of the phrase."

Nevertheless Price says if one takes a larger view of world development and realises Genoa stands not for a particular conference but the great principle of conciliation and co-operation the conference will be seen to have justified itself, for Europe can never be the same again and the new policy will bring us back to principles of peace.

Thomson To Stand High Court Trial

you should become an American citizen. When did you first make mention or the fact that you had already put in an application to become an American citizen?—I told Captain Blain going up to Union Iron works in San Francisco.

In that application you say you renounced your allegiance. You wrote that paper before you signed it?—Certainly.

It had not struck you as necessary to go before a Judge?—I understood that during the War they were making citizens in America right and left.

The war was over in 1920, and you ask me to believe that you did not think it curious that you should become an American citizen without any preliminaries?—I understood from Shipping Board officials that they were making them right and left. The war measure was still being carried out.

APPLICATION EXPIRED

You signed in 1914 that you wished to become an American citizen?—That was when I was in the Standard Oil Co. After I left the United States my paper expired.

How do you know that they are forfeited?—Davis told me that. I never received the second papers.

When did you learn this?—In Shanghai within the last few days.

Is that true?—It is correct. I understand that the final papers is the blue paper.

What is your nationality now?—Scotch.

Did you ever deny your country?—Never.

You denied it twice?—I am Scotch by birth.

When you did not want any employment why did you not stick to that license? You said you were offered one or two billets and you did not want them?—Captain Leale said: "Take what you got and stick to it." I did not return the license because of what Captain Leale told me.

Take that license in your hand. Who made that erasure?—I do not know.

You say that your application to the Coast Officers Guild had certain parts which were not filled by you in your handwriting. Could you suggest who forged the other part?—Captain Kirby must have forged it. I was not in Shanghai at that date.

Could you suggest why Captain Kirby should have forged it?—There were various conspiracies.

On your return to China via America did you meet your friend in San Francisco?—I met Leale and the other gentleman. They were dismissed from the Shipping Board at that time. There was great trouble in the Shipping Board at that time. Some curious things were done.

Had not that raised any suspicions in your mind about this license?—None whatever. In fact the license did not trouble me. I never looked at it until I took it to the American Shipping Office.

The Magistrate committed Thomson to stand his trial at the next Criminal Sessions of the British Supreme Court before a Judge and Jury.

THERE is a distinguishing f in the business of the house of & HAIG. Most Distillers hav ious brands of varying qualities. & HAIG have one brand only, they claim (and the public acclaim) that it is the finest that goes from Scotland.

It is a regrettable fact that all retailers have no the same high standard of commercial honest and it is known that cheaper brands are some times passed on to the public under the label houses of high repute.

When you see a genuine bottle of HAIG & HAIG Fi Stars Scots Whisky it will be the same fine-quality in London, in Lucknow, or in Labrador; in the Langham Hotel, in the G.O.H. at Colombo, and in the best Clubs in Cape Town.

Dr. Chuan Making Effort To Settle Salaries Issue

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, June 28.—Dr. Chuan, the Acting Vice Minister of Education has been hard at work raising money to pay salaries for the month of June. After several weeks continuous plugging, Dr. Chuan has got $120,000, part of which has already been disbursed; this is not enough he is on means of getting more. However, Dr. Chuan seems to have a plan in mind and although he has expended a great amount of energy in meeting the temporary need, he has in the back of his mind something bigger and more lasting. This is a sort of permanent foundation to be maintained by the Ministry of Education and managed solely by it for its own security.

Dr. Chuan would have this fund untouched until an emergency arose such as the Ministry has faced during the past year or more, when the accrued interest could be used as a temporary measure.

The way to get the money to start the foundation does not seem to stagger the smiling, optimistic Minister, who says he has five or six possible sources. As a beginning, he has the pledge of President Li Yuan-hung for the total amount of his salary as head of the government. A semi independent Ministry of Education would bring benefit untold in a country where the young people merely ask the barest equipment in the way of schools and the like. If this could be continuously maintained without worry and strife, one such year would be worth a dozen interrupted ones.

Dr. Chuan promises more definite ideas on this subject after he has had time to think it over.

Peking Officials Trying To Define Federal Status

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, June 28.—The problem of defining where the power of the Central Government ends and that of the Province begins, is now absorbing certain of the Peking officials and it has been discussed at recent cabinet meetings.

Heretofore, the Republic has been content to let things drag on without a definite line and as a result the provinces have remitted taxes or not according to the whims or personal aims of the tuchun or civil governor in question. It varied with different provinces and on the whole, it might be said that the local administrations were independent of the Peking Government.

It is reported now that the cabinet in hopes of changing this system requested the Minister of the Interior to inform the provincial authorities of the new status between them and the national government. Accordingly he telegraphed to the provinces as follows:

"It is clear that in a republic the power of the government lies with the people. We hereby set down what powers the Central Government shall exercise and what the province shall do. These powers shall be divided as follows: the Central Government shall have control over foreign relations; administrative power; navy and army; law courts; national schools; national banks; currency; national railways; navigation; post and telegraphs; parliamentary elections; appointment of certain officials in the provinces, and national taxes.

"On the other hand the provinces shall have jurisdiction over police affairs; census; their finances; education; promotion of industries; waterways; communications; sanitation; relief measures; provincial banks, and local elections."

Triple-Headers To Be Played For Rosenfeld Cup Today And Tomorrow

Postponed Games Set For 1 O'clock; Regular Schedule To Follow

Standings In The Cup League

	W.	L.	PC.
37th Div'n,	2	1	666
Huron,	2	1	666
Shanghai,	1	1	500
12th Div'n,	1	1	500
38th Div'n,	0	1	000
Buffalo,	0	1	000

Triple headers of baseball will mark the week-end on the local club's field. Postponed games in the Rosenfeld Cup League which have accumulated in the last long spell of rainy weather are to be played off as fast as possible. Two Navy games will head the bills today and tomorrow, with Shanghai playing the third games each day.

The first game today and tomorrow will be called at 1 o'clock, the second at 2:30 and the third at 4. The first two will be seven or five inning affairs, and the one in which Shanghai players appear will go to nine innings.

It had not been announced last night which of the Navy nines would meet in the first games today and tomorrow. Ensign Tyler, the Athletic Officer of the flotilla who has the full schedule in charge insofar as the sailor teams are concerned had not yet gotten into full touch with his captains.

The second game today lists the 12th Division against the 38th Division, to be followed in the third session with Shanghai opposing the nine representing the 12th.

Tomorrow, after the first game between Navy nines commencing at 1 p.m. the Buffalo follow on at 2:30 o'clock against the 38th Division, with Shanghai completing the bill starting at 4 against the 37th.

The games remaining yet to be played in the league have a double significance. There is the Rosenfeld cup to win, and then, the right to play Shanghai in the real big cup game on the Fourth of July. Conditions for the larger trophy provide that the best one-boat's team shall compete for the Fourth of July Cup.

It is possible that the winner of the Rosenfeld cup will be selected as the nine to play Shanghai on the Fourth. Should the Huron come out on top of the Navy nines in the Rosenfeld cup play the flagship nine must be selected for the game on the big holiday. Should a destroyer division nine however win the league cup, a one-boat's team will have to be selected to meet Shanghai on the fourth.

Dempsey Accepts Wills' Challenge

(Reuter's Service)

New York, June 30.—Jack Dempsey has accepted the challenge of the negro Harry Wills, which he had thus far declined on the question of color.

His decision follows the ruling of the New York Boxing Commission that the challenge must be acepted by July 10 or Dempsey would be deprived of his title, as in the case of the featherweight Johnny Kilbane and of the middleweight Johnny Wilson recently.

There is no indication, however, of an early meeting between Dempsey and Wills.

MRS. MALLORY, MISS MCKANE GO TO 2ND ROUND

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 29.—Today's program at Wimbledon did not provide any surprises, although the center court was the scene of many interesting international duels.

In a first round match the American, Mr. Dean Mathey, beat the Belgian champion, M. Washer, 0-6 6-2 6-2 7-5. Mr. Mathey used an all-steel racquet but discarded it after he had lost the first three games.

In the second round the Australian, Mr. Patterson, defeated the American Oxonian, Mr. Gravem, 6-1 6-1 6-4, and Mr. O'Hara Wood, Australia, defeated Count de Gomar, Spain, 6-1 6-3 6-4.

The most important results today were the first-round victories of the English hope, Miss McKane, and the American champion, Mrs. Mallory.

Miss McKane will meet Mlle. Lengien in the second round tomorrow.

Sir George Thomas, Major Kingscote, Mr. Gordon Lowe, M. Mishu, M. Gobert and M. Borotra all passed the second round.

California Tennis Teams To Meet All Shanghai Stars This Afternoon

One Doubles And Two Singles Matches Set For French Club

All of Shanghai, comprising the best available local tennis men will give the University of California players their initial introduction to action on Shanghai courts this afternoon on Shanghai courts this afternoon at the Cercle Sportif Francais. One doubles match and two singles will constitute the program.

Parbury and Elmore have been selected to represent Shanghai against Wallace Bates and Aleck Wilson of the visiting team. Sheldon will play one singles match against Carrol Jensen and Tanaka will meet Brick Conrad in the other.

The California men had been slated to make their first match appearance here yesterday against the doubles, Barrett and Parbury, and Sheldon and Gulick in the singles. The soft condition of the Courts however forced the abandonment of the program.

The visiting team, when it became known that yesterday's matches could not be played, as scheduled at the Cricket Club, went out almost solidly to the French Club, where they went through a little practice. Bates, Conrad and Wilson all went into easy action, and though there was no attempt at real tournament or exhibition playing, the few spectators on the grounds saw that the visitors had the knowledge and touch to put them a place high above the average player.

The Californians today [illegible] ing their best doubles team against Parbury and Elmore, so that it is certain that this match at least will bristle with the highest class of tennis. Bates is the intercollegiate singles champion of the United States and he, plays a splendid doubles game, being especially strong in back court play, and having a vicious drive. He and wilson play a strong game together, having had much practice especially in Japan where they won over such players as Kumagae and Nomura, the best in the Island empire.

Though no announcement has been made as yet by Mr. M. H. Brown, secretary of the Shanghai Lawn Tennis Association it is quite possible that the matches between California and the Cricket Club men abandoned yesterday because of soft grounds will be played tomorrow. The date was left open when the schedule of play for the visitors was arranged.

The matches commence at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Carlton, Limited, Meeting

The statutory and annual general meeting of Carlton, Limited, was held yesterday at the head offices of the Company, 10 Canton Road.

In his address to the shareholders, at the statutory meeting, the chairman said:

"Gentlemen, This meeting is held to comply with the Hongkong Ordinance which, as you are doubtless aware, require every public company to hold a statutory meeting within three months from the date which the Company is entitled to commence business.

"The statutory report has been in your hands for several days and from it you will have seen that up to the date it was compiled the applications for shares amounted to Taels 64,700 out of the Taels 100,000," we were asking for and since then a further 24 shares have been applied for. This amount is sufficient for our immediate requirements, so no special efforts have been made to dispose of the balance although we feel confident that there will not be the least difficulty in doing so.

"The sum of Taels 50,000 deposited with the landlords of the new building carries interest at the rate of 8 percent per annum and is repayable in five equal annual instalments commencing immediately after the new building is completed.

"A list of shareholders is lying on the table and is open for your inspection.

"As an ordinary general meeting is to be held immediately after this meeting, I will reserve any remarks that I have make on general matters until then.

"That is all I have to say, gentlemen, but if any of you have any questions to ask I shall be pleased to answer to the best of my ability."

The following resolution was then passed:

That the Statutory Report as presented be passed.

Proposed by Mr. A. J. Welch and seconded by Mr. L. Ladow.

At the first annual general meeting, the chairman said "Gentlemen.—As it is necessary to hold an ordinary general meeting of shareholders once at least in every calendar year and our first financial period will not terminate until March 31, 1923, your Directors have thought it advisable to take advantage of this gathering to do so, and to give you what information they can regarding the progress of the Company.

"This Company, which obtained its licence to commence business on April 7, 1922, was formed to take over as a going concern the business of The Carlton Cafe and to continue this business in the new premises that are at present in course of erection opposite the Race Course. The building contract calls for completion by May 1, 1923, but we have hopes of being able to move in considerably earlier than this date. For the moment, although our receipts for the three months have been quite satisfactory, we have lost, through the inadequacy of our present premises, a lot of business that might have come our way. . . . .

(the remainder of the Chairman's address is contained in the news story of the new Carlton, beginning on Page 1, Col. 1, of today's CHINA PRESS).

TENNIS TOURNEY AT H'KEW PARK SET FOR JULY 7

At the annual general meeting of the Hongkew Park Lawn Tennis Tournament Committee and others interested held at the Hongkew Park, it was decided to close entries for the five tournaments for 1922 on Friday, July 7.

The five competitions are ladies' singles, ladies' doubles, mixed doubles, men's singles, men's doubles, and will be open to all players who are members of clubs, courts, or groups at the Hongkew Recreation Ground. The fees are respectively $2, $3, $3, $2, $3.

A cordial invitation is extended by the Committee to all players to participate in these events and it is hoped that there will be sufficient support this year to enable the Committee to award Challenge Cups for the men's events, and if possible, also for the ladies' events.

Application forms may be obtained from the Honorary Secretary, Mr. A. Meyer of 8 Kwenming Road, or Mr. P. Meyer c/o The American Sales Corporation, 11 Peking Road

The Committee invites all secretaries of clubs, courts, or groups to communicate with the Honorary Secretary in regard to inter-club or group tournament on the American system, if sufficiently supported, will be staged in the Hongkew Park this season.

Announcement was made at the meeting that the mixed doubles championship was to go to Miss N. Castro, and Mr. J. Silva, their opponents in the finals conceding a walk over.

The meeting elected the following as Committee for 1922:—Messrs. J. Thompson, R. Ross, A. F. Meyer, D. B. Sequeira, K. Raeburn, R. C. Carnavarro, A. M. Souza, J. J. Silva, J. M. Gutierrez, P. A. da Costa, J. F. Remedios and A. Meyer (Hon. Sec.) Following the election Mr. J. Thompson, the retiring secretary was tendered a vote of thanks for strenuous efforts in bringing about the success with which the 1921 tournaments met

Northcliffe Writes About His Rivals

London, May 12.—Lord Northcliffe, whose vigorous unconventionality is always breaking out in some new form, has just taken the public into his confidence as to what he really thinks of his millionaire colleagues in the British world of newspaper proprietors and their papers. In a typical, signed article, which has just appeared in the Daily Mail, he gives the following thumb-nail sketches of:

George Cadbury, Quaker, head of the big chocolate and cocoa firm, owner of the Daily News and the Star.

"Among the most curious collections I have seen is one of what is called Northcliffeana, made by an assiduous collector of newspaper clippings about myself and one or two other public men. There are eight volumes of cuttings from the Daily News all about myself. I wonder if Mr. Cadbury has ever realised the accumulation of most un-Quakerlike references to myself which have appeared in his sporting and other publications."

Lord Burnham, owner of Daily Telegraph.

"Lord Burnham's fine work for the News Proprietors' Association, along with my friend Lord Riddell, during the war secured him a well-deserved step in the peerage. Since his grandfather's time the Daily Telegraph has always been a happy family. I like the Daily Telegraph, perhaps because—although I have been in strong rivalry for many years—no unkind reference to myself has ever appeared. It has, on the other hand, gone out of its way on many occasions to say nice things, and I not unnaturally rejoice at the prosperity of what is probably the soundest 'property' of its kind in the world."

Sir Edward Hulton, head of the firm of that name which publishes among others the Manchester Daily Dispatch, the Evening Standard and the Sunday Herald.

"His newspapers hardly ever avoid introducing an oblique hostile reference to myself or my publications, or to France. He has so often referred to myself that I am not being personal when I say that his racing establishment is one of the most perfect and costly in the country."

Lord Beaverbrook, owner of the Daily Express:

"A new colleague—a welcome one—is Lord Beaverbrook, whose career is a credit to Canada. It is a fact as I have pointed out before, that whereas the United States is exporting farmers to Canada, Canada is exporting heads of great business to the United States. It is a happy accident of fortune that Lord Beaverbrook should have come to England. His millions have been earned by brains and initiative. Many people predict a Beaverbrook-Hulton 'merger,' which would be an extremely good thing for the tone of some of the Hulton publications.

"As to the Daily Chronicle, it is a political organ supported by millionaires.

"Next on the list I find the Daily Graphic—a better paper than most people are aware of. Behind it is the great Berry fortune. The Berrys are buying up Fleet Street and its environs.

"Coming to the Westminster Gazette—my friend Lord Cowdray's toy—I told Lord Cowdray (Sir Weetman Pearson) the other day that his newspaper is about as good as my first oil well and pipe line establishment would be. Looking at it reminds me of a man playing golf for the first time.

"I think it curious that in Britain, with a population eight times of Australia, our workers cannot produce a daily labor newspaper. The reason is a very simple one. If you buy the Daily Herald and want the news you must buy an other newspaper."

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

June 30, 1922

Spot and forward bar silver were unchanged in London and New York yesterday.

The London-New York cross rate improved to 441¼.

The official Sterling rate here today was raised to 3-7, the Gold Dollar rate to 79, the Yen rate dropped to 61, and the other rates changed in proportion.

Our market during the morning was steady, with sellers of Sterling at 3-7, and of Gold Dollars at 79⅛ for all deliveries up to August. 3-6⅞ for Sterling and 78¾ for Gold Dollars were offered up to the end of the year.

There were buyers for near delivery at 3-7⅛ for Sterling and 79¼ for Gold Dollars.

In the afternoon, however, the market became very firm, with speculators strong sellers, and a fair amount of business was done in Sterling at 3-7⅛ for July and August, and in Gold Dollars at 79⅛.

The maket closed firm with sellers at these rates. China again bought silver in London yesterday, and the market there is reported as steady.

New York report their market as firm.

Soviets Think They Have Won "Place In Sun"

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, June 20.—The Pravda (Truth) in an article comments on the new hopes aroused among intellectual liberals, university professors and others in foreign countries who believe that Russia's new economic policy, the Genoa conference and other factors spell their own political ascendency and the retreat of the bolshevists through evolution.

Some of these elements even become aggressive in their political aspirations. The Pravda declares that such hopes are unfounded. Neither the new economic policy nor Genoa spell bolshevist capitulation, for the ruling party in Russia has already fixed the limits for the economic retreat.

Neither the party's desire nor the international situation call for further retreats. On the contrary, Soviet Russia's position has become stronger, for considerable concessions have been won from the capitalist world and Russia has established herself as a World Power.

The united capitalist front has been broken. The Russian liberals think the new economic policy is a good anti-Soviet weapon, forgetting that the Soviet makes concessions to the bourgeoisie only when the bourgeoisie changes hostility for collaboration and constructive effort.

Should signs appear of a recrudescence of the anti-revolutionary campaign, the proletarian dictatorship will naturally become more rigid. Proletarian democracy is not to be transformed into anti-proletarian democracy. The liberal politicians cannot hoodwink the proletarian rulers, says the Soviet organ.

W.H.C. SUPER-DURABLE FLAT PAINT
FLAT WALL FINISH
A perfect Paint of smooth surface for Interior Wall Coating

The surface obtainable with this paint is smooth and flat, i.e., it is not a grainy, dead, lifeless finish, but of a velvety texture. It dries in a reasonably quick time, so that work can be carried out effectively, yet has the property of remaining open long enough to enable the worker to cover a large surface of wall without making laps or edges.
Excellent results with Super Durable Flat Finish are easily obtained, irrespective of the skill of the user, and an elaborate preparation of the surface is usually quite unnecessary.
Super Durable Flat Finish has been tried on non-absorbent surfaces of all kinds and where distemper and oil paint have proved prone to shell or flake off, it has always adhered. It gives a lasting finish of surprising beauty.
1 Imperial Gallon covers about 130 square yards one coat.

PROCLAMATION IS ISSUED BY 13 REBELS IN ERIN

Mellows, O'Connor And Others Ask Support Of Republic

(Reuter's Service)

Dublin, June 30.—There is a grave development in the Irish crisis, thirteen leaders of the Republican Revolutionary Army, including Liam Mellows and Rory O'Connor, having issued a proclamation, calling upon all citizens to rally in support of the republic.

Dublin, June 30 (Later).—The Free State troops entered the Four Courts at one o'clock this morning after a terrific bombardment had battered down one of the main walls, enabling them to force their way in. A large part of the rebels surrendered but a remnant is holding out inside the remains of the buildings. Many prisoners were taken. The Free State troops suffered some casualties, including killed.

London, June 30.—While the capture of the Four Courts is a good omen of the ultimate success of the Provisional Government in restoring order, it is evident that they are still faced with the difficult task of rounding up the rebels, whose Communist allies are not only in Dublin, but in other parts of the country.

News from the Provinces is almost completely lacking. Information reaching Dublin from country districts is said to indicate that the Provinces are fairly quiet, but, on the other hand, there are some less favorable signs. For example, rebels set fire to a small Free State post at Foynes, 20 miles from Limerick. The garrison were compelled to surrender.

WIRES SEVERED

Telegraph wires in the Limerick district have been cut, a railway bridge destroyed and the permanent way torn up. Similar tactics are being adopted by rebels in east Cork, but the Provisional Government, at whose disposal are 11,000 regular troops, are not inactive.

A strong force of Regulars proceeded last night to the west of County Limerick, where rebels were reported to be enveloping a Regular post. The Free State troops also carried out a coup in south Drogheda, capturing three of the principal officers of the Dundalk Republicans, who were on their way to Dublin on a motorcar.

Dublin, June 30.—The Free State troops took 33 prisoners in their capture of the Four Courts, while three Free State soldiers were killed and 14 wounded.

Liam Mellowes and Rory O'Connor, with 150 of their followers took up a position to the rear of the building, where they remain.

Heavy gun-firing was still going on at 3:45 this morning.

Dublin, June 30.—The capture of the Four Courts was the result of the Free State forces employing more effective munitions, creating a considerable breach at the western end of the building. The Free Staters charged the breach. Grim hand to hand fighting preceded their success. Mines had been laid by the rebels, but the regulars located them and cut the wires. Large quantities of explosives and machine-guns were captured. The prisoners include Barry, a prominent Southern rebel.

London, June 29.—The Post Office announces that the cable between Anglesey and Kingstown has been cut presumably near the Irish coast. Telegraphic communication between Britain and South Ireland has therefore ceased. The cable to Belfast is now the only means of communication with Ireland.

SITUATION GRAVE

London, June 29.—The situation at Dublin is regarded as very grave in view of the further development of guerilla tactics.

The railway has been cut at Kildare and a bridge outside Limerick Junction blown up, thus severing communication with Cork.

London, June 29.—Fieldguns and trenchmortars were still bombarding the Four Courts at 8 o'clock this morning. There was firing throughout the night, accompanied by machinegun and rifle fire owing to the activities of snipers in various parts of the city. The casualties up to the present are 15 killed and 37 wounded, largely civilians. The casualties amongst the rebels are not known.

While the Four Courts are the center of hostilities and the operations there are assuming the character of an investment, the most menacing feature for the citizens is the fact that the rebels, who retreated from Fowler Hall, are developing guerilla tactics and are co-operating with their comrades, who are believed to be in considerable strength throughout the city, in operation from commandeered hotels, shops and dwellinghouses and also from ambushes.

None of the rebels is wearing a uniform.

Free State troops, driving to and from the barracks at Beggar's Bush yesterday evening, were constantly subjected to a fusillade from one quarter, which was notorious in the troubles of 1921.

The news from the country is uncertain as Dublin is isolated but it is known that the rebels occupying Round Tower Hill, which commands Drogheda, are invested by the Free State troops.

General Bryan Mahon, who has just come from Dublin, interviewed at Holyhead, estimated that the attacking force numbered 1200 to 1500 men and was being constantly reinforced from the country.

London, June 28, (Delayed).—The Free State forces are anxious to save the Four Courts, which contain priceless national records, and they are therefore anxious to compel their surrender and do not contemplate an assault.

A few of the insurgent garrison, estimated to number 300 men, are cleverly concealed and are sniping from the windows.

Earlier reports that the dome of the building had been destroyed are not confirmed. Machine-gun and rifle fire have been mainly used.

Adds To California's Gasoline Supply

C. P. Bowie, of San Francisco, employed by the U. S. Bureau of Mines, has announced a process whereby, he claims, 10,000,000 gallons can be added to California's gasoline supply by using the waste products from oil sands, oil wastes, asphaltum and tars.

Adjournment Is Granted In Case Of Verna Glynn

Another adjournment of two weeks was granted yesterday in the case of Verna Glynn, who is charged in the Mixed Court with being mistress of an unlicensed brothel at 53 Kiangse Road, after Dr. O Fischer, counsel for the defendant, had again raised the question of extraterriteriality, claiming that his client was a Peruvian citizen.

Dr. Fischer maintained that a treaty was entered into between Peru and China in 1875 guaranteeing extraterritorial rights for Peruvian citizens in China. Under the terms of this treaty, counsel maintained, his client could not be tried in the Mixed Court. He therefore asked for more time in which to find some consul willing to take over the protection of Peruvian citizens, inasmuch as there is no Peruvian consul here.

Superintendent of Police Vaughan, who prosecuted, opposed the motion for an adjournment. Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Yui, however, granted two weeks to look into the matter further as the court did not desire to raise any international complications in this case.

KULING SCHOOL GRADUATES 8; 83 ENROLLED

Commencement Exercises Are Held, With Rev. Cooper As Speaker

(China Press Correspondence)

Kuling, June 28.—The Commencement exercises of The Kuling American School were held in the Temporary Auditorium Wednesday morning. The commencement address was delivered by Rev. H. C. Cooper of Kuling, and following the address Headmaster A. H. Stone presented diplomas to the members of the graduating classes. The following pupils completed the eighth grade of the Grammar School Department: Elizabeth Goodard, Kiukiang; Maud Maslin, Hankow; Frances Nelson, Kingchow; Donald Kennedy, Tangsi; Elfrieda Keller, Yochow; and Vachel Wakefield, Wuchang.

High School diplomas were awarded to Miss Helen Adams of Yochow, and Miss Gladys Knecht of Yushien. All of the pupils who completed the eighth grade will return to the School in the fall. Miss Helen Adams will enter the freshman class of Heidelburg University, Tiffin Ohio, while Miss Gladys Knecht will study music in the United States.

The total number of pupils enrolled during the year is 83. Thirteen missions are represented in this number. The total number of pupils enrolled in the summer school, which is being conducted for the first, second and third grades of the primary department, is 23. The summer school began May 1 and will continue to Oct. 31.

The annual declamation contest was won by Miss Helen Adams, Anatole Tourchinsky of the second year high school class, receiving second place.

Great strides have been made during the course of the year in the development of the school property. Two large recreation fields have been constructed—a football and baseball field for boys and a play ground for girls. In addition a large mat shed gymnasium containing a basketball court has been erected.

The school loses three teachers this year who return to America—Miss Gertrude Harlowe, Miss Grace McKinney and Dr. Gertrude E. Beggs. Mr. Theodore Hobbie returns to the school after a year's furlough, and Mr. Vernon Hargroves, a graduate of Princeton University, joins the staff in August.

During the months of July and August the school building will be converted into a summer hotel. This will close Sept. 1, and the fall term of school will open Sept.

Ataman Semenoff Ill In Yokohama

(Nippon Dempo Service)

Yokohama, June 30.—Ataman Semenoff, who arrived here from America on board the Empress of Asia and was prohibited by the government from landing, is suffering severely from insomnia. As he could not sleep on the ship in his present condition, Major Kuroki, formerly military advisor to the general, petitioned the authorities for permission to land.

The permission having finally been given, at 4.25 p.m. yesterday, the sick general was at once taken to Tanaka Hospital at Shinami Yamate where he is now being under medical treatment. He did not state his destination but it is reported that he intends to live in China again.

Japanese Press Demands Redress For Damages To Nationals At Toutoukou

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, June 30.—In view of the fact that the Hunchun affair is still fresh in memory, the Toutoukou incident has greatly startled the Government and people of Japan. Both the Seiyukai and Kenseikai parties yesterday asked their respective representatives to interview the foreign office in connection with the Toutoukou incident. In the meantime the newspapers here, in their leading articles, assert that the Chinese Government can by no means shirk its responsibility for the occurrence of such a grave incident.

"In view of the fact Chinese delegates irrevocably declared at the Washington Conference that foreign residents in China would be accorded absolute protection, the "Jiji" points out," the Chinese Government should keep in mind that should the Toutoukou incident be augmented in the future, Japan will be compelled to take necessary measures by way of self-defence."

The Tokyo "Nichi Nichi" says the Japanese Government should hold the Chinese Government responsible for the incident and tender a fair and proper demand to the Chinese Government with respect to the damage sustained by the Government and private individuals of Japan. The "Chugai Shogyo" sets forth that if China is unable to maintain public peace by her own power, it is necessary for Japan to have some equipment in future in the region of Manchuria, subject to a full understanding with China.

Tokio, June 29.—Advices that have been received by the authorities regarding the reported Toutoukou outrages is as follows:

On June 28, at 3 in the morning, some 200 mounted bandits suddenly descended upon Toutoukou. The first gang set fire to the armory of the Japanese Consulate and the Post Office and the second gang attacked the Chinese town, also setting fire to three or four sections. The bandits, after looting and committing atrocities for some six hours, withdrew at 9:30 a.m. to the summit of hills north of Toutoukou.

The extent of damages sustained by the Japanese known up to 10 a.m. is as under:

The armory attached to the Japanese Consulate has been totally burnt down and the arms kept therein have been destroyed by fire or taken by the bandits. Besides a block of the official residence for Japanese policemen and a mail-room were reduced to ashes.

In the defensive struggle, Mr. Eisaburo Hashimoto, a policeman resident at the Japanese Branch Consulate at Toutoukou, and Mr. Kyuzo Kawabe, a Japanese resident there, were killed on the spot.

Another Japanese policeman, Mr. Takenaka is missing, and Mr. Yahachiro Okabayashi, the Chief in charge of the Japanese post-office, is seriously wounded. In addition, there are many Japanese residents slightly wounded.

Cells of the Japanese Consulate also were destroyed by the bandits and all the prisoners have run away. Mr. Suwa, Vice-Consul, has taken refuge in a safety zone, carrying with him important articles.

The main building of the Japanese Consulate and important documents are on the whole intact.

Tokio, June 29.—A Chientao telegram that reached the War Office late today states that there is no need for the despatch of troops, the Japanese Consul at Lungchingtsun having asked the Police-Station at Huining for assistance. As a consequence, the Head of the Police Station is expected to arrive at Lungchingtsun at the head of forty five policemen.

Two battalions were immediately despatched to Toutoukou and another battalion to Lungchingtsun from Chushihchieh. In consequence, the defence in the last mentioned place has been weakened, and Chinese citizens there are said to be panic-stricken and are endeavoring to call back the battalions already despatched to Toutoukou and Lungchingtsun.

Japanese residents in Chientao have today addressed to the Minister of Foreign Affairs a telegraphic resolution passed by a mass-meeting there requesting the Minister to despatch Japanese contingents to Chientao to protect their lives and property.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, June 29.—The attack by bandits on the Japanese Consulate at Toutoukou yesterday is described in official telegrams from Chientao. The Vice-Consul escaped and the main building is safe but the bandits fired the armory, the mails-office and other buildings, afterwards withdrawing. One Japanese policeman was killed and several residents seriously wounded.

Hearst Interviewed In London

WILLIAM R. Hearst, American editor, whose position in the United States may be compared to that of Lord Northcliffe's in Great Britain, is paying a visit to the British Isles, and notwithstanding that his name is anathema throughout the Empire, the great London dailies are interviewing him. The subjoined interview is reprinted from The London Daily Chronicle of June 3. It deals in the main with the American editor's demand that the United States refrain from interference in the politics of Europe, with his attitude on the Allied debt to America, and upon imperialism. Here is the interview:

Mr. William Randolph Hearst, America's world-famous newspaper magnate, interviewed by the Daily Chronicle representative yesterday at the Savoy Hotel, defined clearly his conception of America's part in settling post-war problems.

Mr. Hearst is the leading protagonist in his country of Americanism; in other words, the tradition as old as America itself of aloofness from Europe and avoidance of foreign entanglements. Through his many newspapers all over the United States, with their enormous aggregate circulation, his news agencies, leased wires and syndicates, he is undoubtedly the most powerful individual maker of opinion in the United States.

Mr. Hearst consented to talk about America's willingness or unwillingness to help Europe, the question of abandonment of the Allied debt to America and, not least, upon imperialism of nations on this side of the Atlantic, a matter upon which he has strong views.

The first question that suggested itself was:

"How does America stand toward after-war Europe; is she cynically indifferent?"

Mr. Hearst answered emphatically:

"Far from it. America is very much interested in the world's welfare. The question for America, therefore, is not only what is best for America, but what is best for all. But I think most Americans believe that America will not only benefit herself most, but be in a position to benefit the world most if she maintains her historic policy of isolation and freedom from entangling alliances.

"Your great Premier said at Genoa:

"'I wish America were here. We want America because she exercises a peculiar authority. Her very aloofness gives her the right to speak. America could exercise an influence that no other country could command. She could come here free and disentangled and with the prestige that comes from her independent position.'

"We want to retain the prestige, the influence, that comes from our independent position. We want to remain free and disentangled. America had no alliances in the late war. She had none before the war, and even during the war. Mr. Wilson was careful to insist on the phrase as well as the fact that America had only associates. Yet no one will say that America did not exert a powerful and perhaps determining influence.

"I think America will always be able to exert the greatest influence and the best influence if she is absolutely free to make up her mind and take action in any particular situation on its merits."

Here the Daily Chronicle interviewer inquired:

"But how can European statesmanship forecast what America's action is going to be in any given case?"

Mr. Hearst replied simply by taking into account America's well established principles of liberty for herself and for others and America's democratic ideals. He said:

"Europe should not expect us to take part in any imperialistic program and in that very possibility of America's becoming involved in imperialistic and militaristic ventures lies the chief objection to America's being definitely involved in foreign alliances.

"European nations are nearly all materialistic from our point of view. Germany, we all knew, was imperialistic before the war. France, though a Republic, is an imperialistic Republic, and has not been any less so since the war. If anything she has been more so.

"England is an exceedingly democratic nation so far as its own people are concerned. Its own people have practically every right and liberty that we in America have. But it is an imperialistic nation in that it imposes its government by force of arms upon other unwilling nations, and the prime principle of our Declaration of Independence is that all governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed.

"To sum up. I think, then, that the nations of Europe can count on the influence of the United States whenever they ought to count upon it, but they cannot count upon it for any imperialistic policies, whether the government of the United States makes treaties with them or not. Under the test such treaties would become mere scraps of paper.

"The people of the United States cannot be delivered on any such deals."

"Would America undergo a sacrifice for the sake of the reconciliation and reconstruction of Europe?" Mr. Hearst was asked. He replied:

"It has undergone sacrifices and is undergoing sacrifices at present. It is not, for example, urging repayment of Europe's debt. It isn't even insisting on an immediate payment of the interest of that debt. Of course, it expects to be paid some time or other unless Europe goes into insolvency and bankruptcy, but that doesn't seem probable."

The interviewer said: "England equally is a creditor nation and is not insisting, but if England were to cancel the debts owed her would America do likewise?" Mr. Hearst replied:

"I don't think there is any disposition in America to abandon the debt and there shouldn't be any disposition in Europe to ask her to abandon it for the very simple, practical reason that the European nations may want to borrow again from us some day and a repudiated debt doesn't make a preferred creditor."

"Do you not distinguish a powerful anti-imperialistic trend in the British policy from Burke and Fox, for example, through Bright and Gladstone to Campbell-Bannermann?" was asked. Mr. Hearst said:

"I have noticed, of course, that anti-imperialistic tendency in England as it appears in the writings of many leading Englishmen of a democratic trend of thought, but I have not noticed it particularly in your Governmental policies. It does not seem strong enough to influence Government action."

"But didn't it influence the grant of dominion government to South Africa after a bitter war and more recently to Ireland?"

"I have said that England is disposed to be democratic so far as its own people are concerned. It similarly tends to become more and more democratic, if that is the right term, toward certain parts of the Empire.

"But, it is not for me, an American citizen, to enter upon a discussion of your internal affairs. These matters are your business. They are for your deliberation and decision, not mine."

Goal Of Christian Unity

Plans Of World Conference At Washington To Further Long-Sought Aim

BY GEORGE ZABRISKEE

(Treasurer of the World Conference on Faith and Order)

There is a city of 1,500 souls within the Episcopal Diocese of Chicago. The city has nine churches. Some of these nine are supported by home missionary boards, receiving from the board more than they give to all mission work.

Allowing five persons to a family, each of these churches would have about thirty-three families. But, by actual count, about 50 percent of the heads of the families do not belong to any of the nine churches, though they are by no means antagonistic to the Christian religion. So that the churches do not show an average membership of more than sixteen or seventeen families.

In Indiana there is a village of 200 inhabitants. It has six churches. Allowing five persons to a family, this means less than seven families to a church.

These instances are cited by the Rt. Rev. C. P. Anderson, D. D., Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Chicago, in a brochure published by the joint commission appointed to arrange for a World Conference on Faith and Order. The conditions he describes can be paralleled in every State of the Union. They persist in spite of tentative efforts which have been made to subordinate sectarianism to Christianity.

"Compare," wrote Bishop Anderson, "the situation in that Illinois city with the New Testament idea of the Church. St. Paul wrote a letter to the Church of God which is at Corinth, and the Church got it and read it. If one of St. Paul's successors were to send a letter to the Church of God which is at this particular city in Illinois (or any other city in the United States) who would get it? Probably no one. The Church of God is so obscured by the churches that the Postmaster couldn't find it. He couldn't see the woods for the trees."

Similarly, the present division among the churches obscures and hinders missionary efforts. Bishop Anderson cites the instance of a Presbyterian minister in India who complained that his greatest difficulty consisted in teaching his converts the difference between the Established Church of Scotland and the Free Kirk.

CONFLICT OF SECTS

These material difficulties arising from the conflict of sects and denominations, however real, however painful, however vital they might seem, did not provide the impelling force behind the World Conference on Faith and Order. Its proponents were not bent upon reforming financial errors and uneconomic methods but rather of ending the sin against the Holy Ghost, the sin of dividing the Church and the body of Jesus Christ.

Having its origin in a resolution passed in 1910 at the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Cincinnati, the movement has grown until today it embraces seventy-seven different autonomous churches, including the principal Christian faiths with the exception of the Roman Catholic. However, the late Pope Benedict XV expressed his friendly interest in the movement and gave assurance of his prayers for its success, although he could not see his way to be represented at the preliminary meeting held in Geneva, August 12-20, 1920. Among the most ardent supporters of the movement is the newly elected Ecumenical Patriarch, Meletios of Constantinople.

Plans are now developing for holding the World Conference at Washington in 1925. No political or economic conference has ever dealt with graver nor more portentous issues than those which will be discussed at this meeting. Not only the Protestant churches of this country and Europe will be represented there, with the churches of the Anglican Communion throughout the world, but also the orthodox churches of the East, including the churches of Russia, Greece, Bulgaria, Rumania, Serbia and other countries, and the Old Catholic church of Europe.

Some idea of the cosmopolitanism of the movement may be gained from the following geographical classification of the Continuation Committee, formed by the preliminary meeting at Geneva in order to provide a permanent organisation. This committee, with its subcommittees includes 136 members from the United States, 4 from Central and South America; 35 from Canada; from England and Wales, 118; Ireland, 24; Scotland, 43; Central Europe, 51; Scandinavia, 24; Balkan States, Asia Minor, Egypt, 30; South Africa, 10; India and Ceylon, 23; China and Korea, 8; Japan, 4; Australia, 136 (including national and State commissions); New Zealand, 11.

The time of the Washington conference will mark the sixteenth hundredth anniversary of the first general council of the Christian Church held at Nicaean, near Constantinople, in the year 325. There were suggestions that the meeting be held either in that place or in Jerusalem, but practical difficulties were considered too serious, and unanimous approval was given to the choice of Washington. The President of the committee is bishop Brent, the General Secretary is Robert H. Gardiner of Boston.

Emphasis is laid upon the fact that delegates will not have power to bind their respective churches to any agreements or understandings. The meeting is solely a conference, and the delegates will merely report back to their churches the nature and trend of the deliberations. They will see and report those points upon which it has been possible to reach a general accord, as well as those upon which there remain persistent differences. The ultimate aim of the conference, to be sure, is Christian unity; but the common understanding of the problem among those who are taking part is that unity is possible without uniformity.

The sponsors of the movement realise that the task they face is a heavy one. Some of the differences between Christian communions go back to, and even beyond, the original schism between the Roman Catholic Church and the Orthodox Churches of the East, which occurred more than a thousand years ago. Some of them originated in the discords that grew up in the period of the Reformation. Yet the leaders are confident that what they have undertaken is not impossible of attainment. Their confidence rests chiefly upon the nature of the Christian Church and our Lord's conception of it, which is that the Church is one united body and divisions are contrary to the law of its being. Their confidence has been sustained by the remarkable spirit which was shown at the preliminary meeting at Geneva when the delegates of the seventy autonomous churches present put aside for the time their doctrinal and sectarian antagonisms and, asking the aid of Jesus Christ, gave themselves up to a humble and sincere contemplation of their various faiths, seeking not to embitter old grievances, but to establish new points of concord, to separate the essential from the accidental and to discover the main foundations of agreement upon which all Trinitarian faiths can unite.

Something of the same kind is occurring throughout this and other countries today. Conferences of two kinds are taking place. Those of one kind are attended by members of the same church. Such discussions are held that the members of a particular church may see clearly the values of the truths for which their own church stands. Conferences of another kind occur when members of different churches come together so that they may understand one another and the value of each other's positions. In this manner it is hoped to bring out the fundamental beliefs which all Christians hold in common; to discriminate between those which seem to any to be fundamental, and those which are merely accidental, and to make available for all the special treasures which have been specially held through centuries of Christian experience in the stewardship of particular churches.

THE WORLD CONFERENCE

Bishops, moderators and presiding elders of the various denominations will direct the conference work, which will extend even to the smallest parishes. Reports of the conference will be sent to the governing bodies of the churches and through them to the World Conference on Faith and Order.

Among the subjects suggested for discussion in the conferences are the following:

1. The object of visible unity.
2. The Church. Some of the views expressed are (a) that it is a divine organism, (b) that it is a voluntary organisation by men, (c) that it is a fellowship whose members are bound to Christ and in and through Him to one another, (d) that Christianity is merely the relation of the individual to Christ.
3. The meaning of unity as touching matters of faith; and the distinction between unity and uniformity.
4. The function, extent and proper uses of a creed or confession of faith, (a) as concerns the Church in its task of preserving and propagating the Gospel, (b) with regard to the individual, (c) as a condition of Church membership.
5. What degree or extent of unity in faith will be necessary in the reunited church?
6. Is a statement of this one faith in the form of a creed or confession necessary or desirable?
7. If so, what creed or confession should be used? Or what other formulary would be desirable?
8. The historic creeds and confession of faith.
9. Does progress in the understanding of God's revelation of himself in Christ and through history and nature require any restatement of these historic creeds and confessions?
10. The Bible in its relation to the Church and to confessions of faith.

The Continuation Committee, which represents the permanent organisation left by the Geneva conference, will meet during the year preceding the gathering at Washington. Its sessions will probably be held in London, and very possibly in the Jerusalem Chamber in Westminster Abbey. There final preparations for the Washington conference will be made, but it is recognised that the success of that meeting depends not alone upon the adoption of wise and far-sighted plans, but also upon the cultivation in advance of the proper spiritual attitude among the members of all churches.

"The spirit of God was the strength of the pilgrims," wrote Bishop Brent following the Geneva conference. "He made us one in our fellowship. The conference was a living body. Life touched life, nation touched nation, the spirit of the East held communion with the spirit of the West as perhaps never before.

"By invitation on the last day of the conference we gathered together—it was the Feast of the Transfiguration in the Eastern calendar—in the Russian Orthodox Church in Geneva for the solemn worship of the Divine Liturgy. Anglican, Baptist, Old Catholic, Presbyterian, Wesleyan, Lutheran, Quaker, were all there, and all there to worship. The Metropolitan of Seleukia in a spiritual address spoke to the pilgrims of his own joy in the vision of unity, and told how, out of the transfigured troubles and pains of the present would rise the glory of the future."

Those who sponsor the coming conference in Washington, and they include some of the highest names, ecclesiastical and lay, of this nation, are confident that the gathering there will act on this same exalted plane, and that out of that meeting will such a consensus of Christian opinion arise as may tend to the reunion of the separated parts of the Church of Christ.

What Ails The World

(New York American)

The matter with the world is what always has been and what always will be the matter with it.

The trouble is simply that it is growing.

Everything that is growing must be imperfect. There must always be buds to become flowers, green fruit to become ripe, chaos to become stars, youth to become manhood, ignorance to become wisdom, and the process of growth implies dead bracts to fall from flowers, dead wood to rot and manure living trees.

In like manner in the world of mind there must be dump heaps and garbage cans for dead ideas and outworn creeds.

The development of the idea of evolution was probably the greatest stride forward in the history of human thought.

Theologically evolution means that the Creator is growing His universe instead of building it as a carpenter.

Philosophically it means that the truth is fluid and progressive and not fixed and absolute.

Politically it means democracy, for democracy is simply that condition in which people are allowed to grow their governments themselves, and not to have their governments saddled on them by theorists.

It is only by conceiving the world as a growing thing that one can be an intelligent optimist. For he does not have to believe that everything is best, but simply that everything is getting better.

This idea is far from being a new one. It can be traced back as far as the old Greek philosopher Heraclitus the Obscure, who taught that "Everything is a becoming."

It is this world view that explains danger. Danger is a necessary accompaniment of life. Wherever you find life you find danger, and wherever you find absolute safety you find death only.

There is nothing perfect in this world. Mankind will always be strangers and pilgrims. We shall always "seek a city."

The most satisfactory view of the tragedies, wars and the evil of the world is that they are "growing pains."

The Week's Market Report

In their weekly report on the Shanghai piece goods trade, Messrs. Noel, Murray and Company write as follows:

Cotton.—It would seem that the prospects for the U. S. crop have improved as a substantial drop in prices has taken place in New York and Liverpool; yesterday in the former market, Spot cotton was down to 22.10 cents (a fall of 90 points) and the forward rates were lower in proportion, July 21.62, October 21.57, December 21.37, January 21.19 and March 21.03 cents. In Liverpool on Monday, prices were 13d. for Spot Good Middings, 12.44d. for July and 12.15d. for October. The latest quotation for Bengals is 9.50d. and fr 'Egyptans 20.00d. In Bombay prices have receded to Rs. 381 for F. G. Bengals, Rs. 4 5 3 for Fine Oomras and Rs. 467 for F. G. Broach July-August.

Home Market.—Manchester appears to be better supplied with orders than for some time past, as the deliveries offered are getting to be more remote; India is supposed to be her chief customer at present, but China is also represented in the order books. In consequence of this and the higher levels that had been reached by cotton, the makers have been adopting a firmer attitude; at the same time small concessions are usually granted to buyers. Arrivals from England have been rather heavy of late, but it is believed the shipments afloat are not of a heavy nature. The reduction in the Bank rate has had a stimulating effect on business generally in Great Britain.

Local Market.—It is rather depressing to find that home prices have been going up, whereas here the tendency has been in the other direction. There has been some demand from the North, Korea, Newchwang and Tientsin, but holders seem to be rather anxious sellers, which gives the Chinese a strong pull and they take advantage of this to further cut their offers. Both Greys and Whites have been thus affected and it is still a little early for the demand for Dyed and Fancy Goods to show itself.

Yarn.—The local situation appears to be getting a little serious: sales are behind production especially of No. 20's, and it is said there is an accumulation of about 70,000 bales in the warehouses of the mills, likewise this brings about a monetary difficulty as the wherewithal to finance further supplies of Cotton is not coming in. In some cases mills expedited a shortage of cotton in the summer and laid in big supplies, in addition to which Indian Cotton is arriving very freely. However, there have been sales of 3,300 bales this week, the most of which are for July, September delivery. Also 3,800 bales have been taken for bundles sales. Of Indian sorts, 575 bales have been sold and 850 bales of Japanese.

Financial:—Stocks of Silver in Shanghai have increased to $29,146,000 and $30,900,000; $5,060,000 and $18,320,000 of which are in the Native banks.

Auctions.—54,850 pieces were sold this week, on a falling market for Greys and Whites: the latter giving way somewhat seriously, Jeans and Bleached T. Cloths recovered some one to two mace but White Sheetings gave way. Turkey Reds were again very irregular. Velvets were steady all through and White Lawns were down about 3 mace, whilst the Dyed qualities advanced a fraction. The Dyed section goods were steady to better if anything.

ROSENFELD REPORT

In their weekly report on the Shanghai cotton market, Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld and Son write as follows:

China Cotton.—During the past week, the market was uneventful, but with rather a steady undertone in a general way, with nothing of special importance transpiring.

The outlook for the immediate future continues uncertain, but aside from intermediate fluctuations, the dominant factor in settling the question of the price at which the balance of this crop will be sold, is undoubtedly to be found in the outlook of the next yield.

Looking at the situation in the broadest way, we believe that if the weather clears up in this province and along the valley within the next few days and considering the flattering reports to hand from the other growing centers, the preponderance of chances will be against the market. In the meanwhile, however, the market will be governed by weather conditions in the aforementioned sections of the cotton belt and by the action of professional operators. Mid-Americans have had a reaction of some 150 points, thon recovering some 70 points and we believe is now on its way to a new high level.

Extracts of Correspondence

Kiangsu Province, June 28:—On account of the bad weather we have had for the past week there has been little farm work done in this province. Clear, and warm weather is needed to finish chopping out, and to free the crop from grass.

Yangtsze Valley, June 26:—There has been too much rain and the weather has been too cool during the past few days for the young plant.

Chekiang Province, June 26:—Since our last report, cotton has made rapid improvement. Although there has been too much rain in this province, nevertheless, with a few days of dry weather there would be quite a change in the prospects.

Shensi Province:—No report to hand.

Shantung and Chihli Provinces:—No news.

Yarn:—Nothing bullish has come to light since our last report was issued. Our market during the interval continued steady to weak with a feeling of assurance that no firmness is likely to develop in this direction for some time to come, due to the lack of demand from outports and heavy stocks by local spinners. However, we are of the opinion that the market will not show any definite signs of activity until stocks are cleared.

SPUNT AND COMPANY

Messrs. J. Spunt and Company write as follows in their weekly report on the cotton market:

China Cotton:—Our market may be said to have been in a stagnant condition and outside of the meagre operations in futures at the Chinese Cotton Exchanges, there was practically no business worth recording consummated during the past week. Prices here continued steady not having been appreciably influenced by the temporary reaction displayed recently in the U.S.A. and Indian markets, whence telegraphic information has been received that the general sentiment is bullish and indicating eventually higher prices.

Local spinners in general are not inclined for the time being to avail themselves of offerings that are from time to time being submitted at comparatively favorable rates, the absorption of which, however, would ultimately result to their advantage and which circumstances are mainly due to the depression still existent in our yarn market and the consequent uncleared, growing accumulation of stocks of mill's products. However, a revival in demand in this direction will naturally further stimulate prices in the raw material, which fact should not be lightly regarded at this stage of uncertainty as to the ultimate outturn of the new season's yield. Tone of the market, Steady.

PONGEE SILK

The China Merchants Silk Association have received the following report on the pongee silk market from their Chefoo head office dated June 24:

The market has been active during the week. Enquiry has been good particularly from Australia and France.

Orders, however, are executed with great difficulty and we hear that much business was lost during the week owing to the scarcity of stocks and the inability of the market to meet the demand. Certain qualities of Shantungs are already out of stocks.

As regards supplies, only very small, lots of Ninghais are coming in the market. Most of the filatures have closed down and it is not expected that they will resume work before the new crop of cocoons is in the market during the Autumn months.

We wish to remind our readers of our Seasonal report of November 15, 1921 in which we wrote:

Taking into consideration the great demand for Tussah silk in America and Japan and also the requirements of the pongee industry in this Province, this year's cocoon production is indeed very small and the pongee silk industry in Shantung and the pongee silk trade in general will suffer considerably from a shortage of cocoons also from the high cost of same.,

HAIRNET

Messrs. Yannoulatos Bros (China) have received the following report on the hairnet market from their Chefoo head office under dated of June 24:

The cessation of work by the hairnet makers in the country is commencing to be felt in the market.

Buyers from the interior have appeared in this market during the last few days to buy hairnets, which is an indication that there are no stocks to be had in the producing centers.

Prices are firm.

FILET LACES

Prices of filet laces [illegible] changed since last week, assorted goods quoting [illegible] cent per hole for first grade.

Rose Patterns, 6 and 9 hole, are still in demand and the ruling quotation is 1.6½ cents to 1.7 cent per hole for the former and 10 cents for the latter.

Practically no business has been done in Irish crochet laces and prices are still weak.

Rates are as follows:—

Filet laces (not less than 1 hole, 1.5½ per hole.

Irish Laces: Reading 9 cents per yard, 2 bean 40 cents, 3 bean 50 cents, 4 bean 60 cents and 5 bean 70 cents.

Children Cry for Fletcher's
CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.

It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.

Save the Babies.

Infantry mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in ivilised countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind, keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

Japanese Allege Violation Of Treaty

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, June 26.—Despite the fact that the Chinwangtao station, where General Headquarters of the Chihli troops is now situated, is under the jurisdiction of the Japanese garrison according to the treaty concluded in 1901 in connection with the Boxer trouble, the Chihli troops recently prohibited Japanese soldiers from entering the platform of the station.

In consequence the Commandant of the Japanese garrison there lost no time in lodging a protest with the Chihli troops, who, however, not only failed to listen to the protest but on June 22, when some Japanese soldiers on duty entered the platform to watch the arrival and departure of trains, assaulted the Japanese soldiers.

More than this, on the afternoon of June 22 the Chihli troops did violence to Japanese sentries at the station, and destroyed Japanese military telegraph wires between Shanhaikwan and Chinwangtao. They, besides, prevented the Japanese garrison from repairing damaged parts of the telegraph wires. Some of them went so far as to cut repaired telegraph wires in the presence of Japanese soldiers.

According to the treaty in question, it is provided that the Chinese troops are forbidden to be stationed within two miles of the Peking-Mukden Railway, but the Japanese garrison, having full regard to the principle of non-interference in China's internal troubles, gave an implicit consent to the presence within the zone of the Chinese troops so far as they did no harm to the Japanese garrison.

Kiangsi Menaced By Li's Ultimatum

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, June 26.—While fighting in Kiangsi is now at a standstill, General Li Lieh-chun's force are still keeping their position back of Kanchow, where he is dictating his terms of armistice to General Tsai Chen-hsun, new Commander of Kiangsi.

It is stated that General Li's aggressive attitude has not abated in the least, and is threatening the peace of Kiangsi Province, should General Tsai fail to meet with his demands, among which is the suggestion that all northern troops under General Tsai that have come to Kiangsi to resist the expedition should evacuate Kiangsi. General Li Lieh-chun further demands that he be installed in the post of Commander of Kiangsi Military Affairs.

General Wu Pei-fu has directed Commander Tsai to march his troops to Kanchow immediately and there to await the first opportunity to crush General Li's recalcitrant forces. However, President Li Yuan-hung strongly disapproves the attitude of General Wu in dealing with Li Lieh-chun, and is advising General Tsai to take mild measures pending the outcome of negotiations for peace with him.

Brigandage and unrest are prevailing in Kiangsi districts, and General Tsai is considering it his first duty to maintain peace and order in his province. For the protection of Nanchang and Kiukiang, General Tsai is urging all mobilised troops to hurry to Kiangsi. His telegram to Wuchang for supplies of ammunitions were all complied with by General Hsiao Yao-nan.

Denby To Reach Yokohama July 2

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, June 29.—Mr. Edwin Denby, the United States Secretary of the Navy, and the party of Annapolis cadets, will arrive at Yokohama at noon on July 2 and will be given a naval reception by a flotilla of destroyers. There will be an aerial demonstration.

The week's program of entertainment, to be given by the Imperial Court, the Premier, the Foreign Minister and others, has been slightly disarranged owing to the death of Prince Higashi-Fushimi.

Tung Kang Wants Paper Mill Sold

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, June 27.—Minister Tang Kang has proposed that the Bureau of Printing and Engraving and the papermill at Hankow be turned over to private management. These two branches of the government have been well equipped with modern machinery but because of bad management in the past and present financial conditions, they have been losing money steadily.

The Minister of Finance now suggests that private individuals run them in an endeavor to make them pay. The only revenue has been from postage stamps, which amounts to about $20,000 per month. By careful private supervision, the government may be able to get back the capital invested in time.

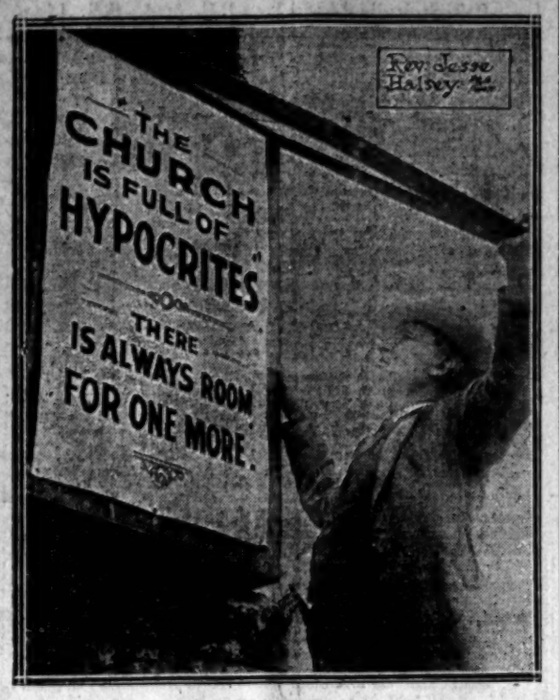
Preacher Has Sense Of Humor



YOU have heard of the retort courteous. Well, here's the retort in vitational. An anonymous critic wrote Rev. Jesse Halsey (above), pastor of the Seventh Presbyterian Church, on Walnut Hill, Cincinnati O.: "The Church is full of hypocrites." The pastor put the statement on a bulletin board and added: "There is always room for one more."

Red Cross Roads Are Not Properly Maintained

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, June 26.—The results of a year's wear and tear on the roads built by the American Red Cross, China Famine Relief, is reported on by the former Director, Mr. John Earl Baker, in his letter to the National Headquarters, at Washington. The interest in this report lies mainly in the comparison of the efforts put forth by the authorities of the Provinces of Shantung, Shansi, Chihli, and Honan, in organising a proper system of repair and upkeep. Mr. Baker says.

"Nothing has been done by the Province of Shantung to fulfill its promises to the American Red Cross to maintain these 485 miles of highway. There has been flood in certain areas, political disturbances have threatened, and the cost of military forces keeps the province in poverty. These may all be offered as excuses, or as explanations, why nothing has been done.

"But the fact remains that the promises have not been kept. However, a large proportion of the roads have recently been put into good repair by forces supported by the flood relief organisations. If the province hereafter does not provide for maintenance, charitable organisations may well consider whether or no it may not be possible hereafter to relieve the destitute of such a province by offering employment in some other province which has both the means and the will to maintain the public utility constructed."

SHANSI OFFERS CONTRAST

"In Shansi, on the 80 miles of the Pinglingchow Road there has been a constant patrol, in seven divisions. Trees have been planted along almost the entire length. Extra gangs are now at work lengthening retaining walls and reconstructing a few dips which were poorly designed. Telephone poles were lying along the whole length preparatory to a military telephone system being extended to this part of the province.

"The Governor has organised the five counties served by this road into a militia district. Within this district he proposes to abolish the standing army, and to conscript the youths of a certain age, who will give three months to intensive training. That period completed, they will return to their farms or their forges, but may be called out under a reserve system in time of emergency.

"Barracks are now being built for the school just south of Pingtingchow. This is the first constructive attempt toward the disbandment of troops in China.

"The Hantan-Taimingfu road in Chihli has had a little repair done by contract forces from time to time. No carts whatever are allowed on the road. The policing of this feature is simplified by the novel device of digging at strategic places a well in the middle of the road. This well is bricked up, and a notch is cut into each side of the road so that only about two feet is left on each side of the well. Chinese carts have the animals attached in tandem—never abreast. The animals will not cross these wells and they cannot turn out. A motor bus runs along the road and the fare for a 46 mile ride is $5.50.

PSYCHOLOGICAL SIDE

"The Honan road affords much food for thought in connection with a road program in China. It will be remembered that this is the one road built under Red Cross direction, which was macadamised. At present it is fully as rough as any of the unmaintained Shantung roads.

"As soon as the local carters found how easily their animals drew the customary loads over this firm roadbed, they began to increase the load until the animal had his usual burden. They even went further and added additional animals, seeing that the wheels did not sink deeply into the roadbed. With loads so much heavier, it only remained for the summer rains to soften the foundations and then the narrow tires cut through.

"Broad tired carts were tried by a few. But seeing that the wheels did not cut in, they were overloaded and soon went to pieces. Nothing has been done by the officials toward maintaining the road. A portion of the road was repaired by "poor relief' labor under the direction and pay of the Canadian Presbyterian mission.

"After the Red Cross appropriation for the Peking-Tientsin highway had been exhausted, the American Advisory Committee added $50,000 local currency. This sum was insufficient to complete the road for reasons that have been explained before, and an additional $100,000 was obtained by the pledge of certain collateral furnished by organs of the Chinese Government. With this sum, the road, so far as the earthwork was concerned, was about to be completed to Tientsin.

"At this juncture, for purposes of his own, the Chief of Police of Tientsin directed an attack upon the laborers which succeeded in driving them off. No Chinese were allowed upon the works within this jurisdiction. These various happenings drew upon the Chief of Police such a storm of criticism that he undertook the remaining work with his own forces and completed the line into Tientsin, borrowing, so it is said, some $70,000 for the purpose.

Lately carts have been using it indiscriminately and the surface has been made all but impassable. some excellent bridges have been put in place, however, and if order and discipline are ever restored in this region, this highway can be easily maintained as a dirt road, or it may be surfaced with gravel or macadam.

"The most important result of all is the change in attitude toward methods of famine relief. From now on, I believe it is safe to say, the bulk of such relief will be given through employment upon public utilities rather than by free distribution either to the households of sufferers or to concentration camps. This will also have no inconsiderable effect upon the public attitude toward the more effective utilisation of the great latent man power of Chinese communities."

It is as a result of Mr. Baker's experience in directing the organisation and functioning of these large groups of famine workers over four different provinces, that his name has been mentioned in connection with the conversion of superfluous troops into labor gangs to work on public improvements.

Wedding Ring A Sign Of Power

The mark of matrimony, the wedding ring, is the smallest and most beautiful shackle in the world. Were it not for the enterprise of the jewelers it might be well on its way to obsolescence for women, just as it has become almost obsolete for men. There have been long and strong protests against this badge of servitude.

But in modern times it has been made light. It is beautifully carved in roses, orange blossoms or ivy wreaths. It is made in red and green and yellow gold. It may be platinum. It may be a glittering hoop that is all jewels.

Then, of course, there is the minor matter that most persons are not so advanced that have lost their sentiment about wedding rings, that they still honor their traditions and have no desire to discard their symbols.

This fuss about the wedding ring being a mark of servitude is one of the funniest misconceptions that ever frothed in a feminist brain. In England women have gone so far as to have a movement to force all married men to wear a wedding ring and to let women do just as they like about it. Where they ever got these strange ideas is a mystery to those who know the history of the wedding ring.

DR. JOHNSON'S IDEA

They must have read the definition of ring in old Dr. Johnson's dictionary, gotten into an awful rage at his presumption and never stopped talking about it. Dr. Johnson did write one of the meanest things ever written about rings. He says: "A ring is a circular instrument placed upon the noses of hogs and the fingers of women to bring them into subjection." This might be reported as a vagary of Dr. Johnson's brain, an elephantine attempt at humor, born of too much tannin in a pot of boiled tea.

The wedding ring has a idea even harder and more practical back of it. Its actual history does not bear out the notions of either the sentimentalists or the feminists. It has clearly had the same relation to the marriage contract that the payment of earnest money has now to the legal closing of any business contract. The metal in the ring was the "valuable consideration" to bind the bargain when the betrothal engagement was completed.

It was once the custom in England for the bridegroom to give the bride a little purse filled with money at the altar as well as the ring. This appears in the words of the ceremony as given in an old edition of the Prayer Book:

"With this ring I thee wed.
This gold and silver I give thee."

The custom of giving the bride thirteen pieces of gold as a wedding day gift from the bride groom is still observed in some Latin countries.

RING SIGN OF CUSTODIAN

The ring was the sign that the wife was entrusted with her husband's property; special valuable possessions were delivered into her care. She was responsible for them. Wedding rings were often used as seals and with them the fastenings of household treasures were stamped.

This was the distinctly understood use to which they were put in Rome, where the wedding ring was of iron.

The plain gold band is by no means the universal standard regulation wedding ring. All sorts of metals have been used for rings. The idea that it is bad luck to take it off the finger has no particular antiquity, but has the notion been generally held that it must be worn on the "ring finger" of the left hand.

Roman rings were iron and rings and it was common for a man to give his wife two rings them—one, of gold, to wear outside the house for show and one of iron, for every day use. Rings of sard and of onyx, made from the stone without any metal have been used a great deal in the near East. In shape they resemble the gold new style rings of today, being narrow and thick.

Silver wedding rings have been common and the white metal was used from preference. Some of the French bishops of the thirteenth century went so far as to insist upon silver rings. Customs varied in different dioceses. The bishop of Paris was very strict in his ruling that only a plain gold ring be used with no inscription, no figure on it, no stone set in it.

EMBLEMS ON WEDDING RING

This statement casts some light on the elaborate rings that were popular at the time. Two profile photographs of the loving couple was a favorite design. A very early French wedding ring, probably of the fifth century, is of black enamel and gold and shows a woman holding out her arms to a warrior, who rests on his lance. On the bezel is a wreath ornament in enamel. The engraving reads, "Dromis and Betta." It weighs over an ounce. Ecclesiastical military emblems also were frequently used.

The tradition of the "fourth finger of the left hand with a vein leading directly to the heart" seems to have a pagan origin. At any rate, wedding rings have been worn on the right hand and also on the first finger and the middle finger. When the rings were very heavy the second joint of the thumb was favored.
